Mediation is one way to resolve disputes between those who live in the same locality or neighbourhood.

Trained mediators, who do not take sides, help both parties to come to an agreement about the problem in hand: For a service in your area see www.scottishmediation.org.uk/find-a-mediator or call 0131 556 8118

If you are a housing association tenant, you can contact your housing officer for advice and assistance

Behaviour which is acceptable to some may be seen as antisocial and unacceptable to others. Antisocial behaviour is not behaviour that is just different, or the result of a religion, age, medical or developmental condition or mental health. Tolerance and awareness of other's needs is an important part of tackling antisocial behaviour.
