sponsorship. They operate between Fraserburgh and Arbroath (therefore slightly into Angus). They can provide beach cleaning equipment along with volunteers for community projects helping reduce beach waste.

Sandford bay was one of the first projects the EGCP assisted with and was one of the worst affected areas. Heavier items found on the beach were difficult to remove but with the help of the group, they got Aberdeenshire Council involved and in the end, with 44 people involved, 2.5 tons was removed. The group also provides workshops to schools - presentation around plastics, the environment and some of the activities they perform.

The group use the website SCRAPbook to identify areas of high waste around the coast as they use aerial photos to show litter – This group analyse the data and then can target the worst areas.

There is a potential to work with RNLI to get to remote beaches.

In 2019, the plan is to run, from April, 4 beach cleans a month. They are happy to work with the community and have highlighted the Great British clean starting on the 13th September for three days.

EGCP are looking for our support to advertise events and gain exposure in the community – ‘turning the plastic tide’ is the organisations motto.

Report 2018

Any concerns with road worthiness, please contact the Police

7th February is the planned date for next police report

There have been 11 thefts with 8 detected

Stolen goods (in this case power tools) often go to second hand shops – the seller must provide ID and the shop must then hold the items for 48 hours.

The police have been patrolling Stonehaven Square where a 45 mins parking limit is in enforcement with a fine of £30 who violate this time limit – Persons parking on zig-zag lines will be fined £100 and receive 3 points on their licence.

Parking is no longer free in the square car park (30 mins is now 50p)

Road policing unit could now be based in Inverurie in a move from Stonehaven – response time could be affected. At present, there have been no consultations on the matter with potential effect currently unknown. CKDCC to decide if we put in a letter. Stuart Drummond based in Inverurie to be contacted – request clarification from the information that has been provided in the public forum –request comments on the proposed changes and if a consultation process is to be held? Economic impact also to Stonehaven should also be considered.

Push bikes being used for delivery's are currently being inspected. There is a duty of care for these kids to ensure they are fit for purpose in regards to this.

Steven Dick is the new inspector – keen on community aspects. Contact directly should there be any community suggestions.
